

NAPAC is recruiting a Training and Development Officer to support our essential work with adult survivors of child abuse and the professionals who support them.

NAPAC exists to support survivors of childhood abuse. The damage caused by abuse in childhood doesn't always end in childhood. Many adults with a history of childhood abuse continue to suffer from post-traumatic stress disorder, eating disorders, depression and other mental health challenges. It doesn't have to be this way – this is a core belief that drives NAPAC's work.

We are seeking a Training and Development Officer to join our London team. The post holder will support NAPAC's growth by leading the development and management of NAPAC's training programme. Do you have the skill to develop a shared language between survivors and the professionals who support them? Can you design and deliver effective training programmes using academic research and in-house expertise? Are you able to deliver on agreed goals?

We would really like to hear about your experience and interest in the role.

Please send a CV and covering letter to sameer.munjial@napac.org.uk
